

英文熟考(上)

次の英文の日本語訳を書きなさい。

46. Workers in that factory should realize quite clearly that wearing protective clothing may help prevent injuries but will not fully guarantee their safety in all situations.
47. Recently, there have been news reports of supermarkets raising prices steeply on some products and many customers searching for less expensive brands.
48. Despite the fact that Finland has long and brutal winters, there are often news reports of that nation having ranked first in the world for the happiness of its people.
49. At first, many young people were reluctant to receive the vaccine, feeling confident that, even if they were to become infected with the virus, they would not suffer any serious effects.
50. Built more than four thousand years ago, the pyramids still remain nearly perfect.
51. Most people, not knowing Switzerland at first hand, often imagine it as a country where people are devoted to dairy-farming, mountaineering, and watch-making.
52. The idea of girls attending school met strong opposition from adults in the village, where parents, unaware that urban societies encouraged girls' education and barely managing to survive, depending on their daughters to work.
53. The earthquake that struck yesterday morning was strong, its tremors being felt hundreds of kilometers away.
54. Scientific progress is made step by step, each new point that is reached forming a basis for further advances.
55. There has been an increasing effort to find new ways of dealing with this disease, the conventional treatment having become less and less effective over the last ten years.
56. Recent studies have made it clear that - contrary to popular belief - young boys are, on average, just as sensitive about their looks as young girls are.

57. Women wearing trousers used to be an unusual sight; now it is completely normal.
58. We saw a tall mountain in front of us. On the side of the mountain grew a forest of pine trees.
59. Global warming has been known about for a very long time, but only recently have its true dangers begun to be understood by the general public.
60. We take for granted satellites and trips to the moon, nuclear-powered submarines that stay underwater for months, aircraft's that travel faster than sound, factories operated by machines that run other machines, and computers that seem more intelligent than humans.

解答欄

46.
47.
48.
49.
50.
51.
52.
53.
54.
55.
56.
57.
58.
59.
60.

お名前：